estimated revenue of the Washington C.H. School District will fall almost $150,000 short of the anticipated 1977 expenditures, according to a budget draft submitted Monday by Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor.

In light of the projected deficit, the city school board will consider presenting a tax increase request to voters in the November general

Actually, the "increase" being contemplated would merely restore millage which the district expects to see rolled back due to the reappraisal.

Nestor said that the reappraisal of Washington C.H. property increased values and projected revenue for the city schools. However, in accordance with present tax laws, the millage is rolled back so that the schools receive the same amount of money after reappraisal as they had beforehand. Unlike the Miami Trace School District which is sitting on the state minimum tax rate of 20 mills for school operations, the Washington C.H. School District has had 22.7 mills of operating tax. Nestor said that the auditor is required to reduce the present school millage to 20.5 mills so it will bring only the dollar amount city residents voted for the school operations.

Increased operating expenses of $168,000 have created the deficit. The board is considering a 2.5 mill request which would generate somewhat in excess of $100,000. Although it would be termed "new" millage, it would simply restore the millage lost in the reappraisal, Nestor noted. It would not increase the present tax rate.

A long awaited "tax relief" bill, it will presumably offer aid and comfort to overburdened taxpayers. If this is the case, it is unlikely to offer the school board any additional revenue. If it effects the school revenue at all, there will be a decrease, not an increase, officials agreed.

THE DATE of the next board meeting was changed from July 19 to July 12. Since the 1977 budget must be approved by July 15, the board agreed to meet and consider it in conjunction with its regular meeting by changing the meeting date.

Maurice Pfeifer attended Monday's meeting to discuss the accelerated mathematics program initiated in the Middle School last year.

He said that only one student in the class of 35 decided to drop the course even though students condensed more than two years normal work into one school year.

Pfeifer explained that the accelerated class of seventh graders completed the seventh grade text, the eighth grade text and studied a few weeks of algebra before the school year

The class was termed an outstanding success by Pfeifer, who is a guidance counselor at the Washington C. H. Middle School. He said the class average for the year was 85 per cent, a B-plus average.

Forty students entering the seventh grade have been accepted for the same class next year. They will continue in an accelerated math program throughout their high school careers.

The program was initiated because it was felt that college-bound students graduating from Washington Senior High School were encountering difficulty coping with college math courses, especially those pursuing engineering degrees.

Three teachers were named for positions as varsity athletic coaches. Paul Ondrus, newly recruited football coach from Bowling Green State University, will also serve as head baseball coach.

crisis over the formation of a new Christian Democratic government. It also meant that action to ease Italy's grave economic crisis is a long way off.

Despite the prospect of continuing political and economic instability, the stock market and the lira rallied because of the Communists' failure to displace the Christian Democrats as the country's largest party. Gains in early trading on the Milan stock exchange averaged 2.5 per cent while the lira rose from 854 to the dollar to 844-848. Then speculators took their gains, realization of the uncertain future overcame the initial enthusiasm, most blue chips closed below their Monday level, and the lira inched down to 848-850.

More than one out of three voters cast a Communist ballot in the elections Sunday and Monday for a new Chamber of Deputies, boosting the party from 27.2 per cent of the vote in 1972 to 34.6 per cent. The Vaticanbacked Christian Democrats got 38.6 per cent, compared to 38.7 per cent four

This gave the Christian Democrats the chance to form their 35th government since World War II. But to get the parliamentary majority necessary for effective government, they needed to rebuild their center-left coalition with the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans which collapsed in January. And the Socialists said during the election campaign that the coalition was a dead issue.

Communist party secretary Enrico Berlinguer, surveying a sea of clenched fists and red flags below the balcony of his Rome headquarters, said the election result was "a great leap for-

"We will have to deal with the Christian Democrats, and they will finally realize that they have to deal with us," he declared.

However, the Christian Democrats campaigned on a pledge to keep the Communists out of the government. And Berlinguer ruled out "a head-on clash," saying: "The Communist party is not in a hurry to go into the government. It was not before. It is not now, even if it has obtained a big result.'

s no immediate comment of the election outcome from the U.S. government, which repeatedly warned that admission of the Communists to the government would endanger relations between the Italian and American governments and Italy's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But the failure of the Communists to lead the voting undoubtedly was a relief for President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Final returns from the voting for the Chamber of Deputies gave the Christian Democrats 14.2 million votes, the Communists 12.6 million, the Socialists 3.5 million, the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI) 2.2 million, the Democratic Socialists 1.2 million and the Republicans 1.1 million. Smaller parties and joint tickets divided the rest.

The Christian Democrats won 263 seats in the 630-seat chamber, a loss of three, and were 53 short of a majority. Communists increased their standing from 179 seats to 227.

District ordered to rewrite grooming code

State, federal regulations annoy city school board members

By GEORGE MALEK

The Washington C.H. Board of Education fears it may not be able to stop boys from wearing dresses to school this fall.

Although it may sound like the school system is preparing for a massive student rebellion, the board is more concerned with massive outside intervention by federal regulating agencies. The board of education does not foresee a male tidal wave flooding women's apparel stores during the back-to-school sales period. However, it has concluded that if such a rush does occur, the board will have no way to stop the young men from sporting their feminine treasures in the halls of Washington Senior High School.

Board members discussed at some length Monday a letter from the Cleveland office of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The letter demanded that the board halt all sexual discrimination in the school district. It was particularly emphatic in the area of grooming codes.

In response to a complaint filed by Allen McClung, father of Thomas McClung, a former Washington Senior High School student and Ohio Supreme Court case winner, an HEW representative has directed the board to rewrite its grooming regulations

Kenneth A. Mines, director of the office for civil rights in Region V, stated in the letter that "it is my determination that Washington C.H. City School District is in noncompliance with the provisions of

In essence, he stated that the school system is guilty of sexual discrimination, that it has 15 days to acknowledge an intent to repent, and 45 days to comply with his opinion of what the dress code should be. He demanded that the dress and gromming code be rewritten within 45 days.

In Mines' opinion, in order to comply with Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 (Title IX became effective in July, 1975), the board must remove its regulations governing length of hair as well as prohibiting beards and mustaches.

He cited as the basis for his opinion a section of Title IX which states, ". . . a recipient (of federal funds) shall not on the basis of sex: . . discriminate against any person in the application of any rules of ap-

One board member chided that strict adherence to this regulation would prohibit the board from setting a policy that keeps boys from wearing dresses to school. Failure to comply with the provisions of Title IX can result in loss of federal school subsidies which amount to more than $100,000 per year. AS THE mass of state and federal regulations increases, board members are becoming more and more fearful that they will loose the authority to govern their They are beginning to feel the only power they hold is the power to enforce rules made by other agencies. Most upsetting to the board was the fact that they were not personally contacted by Mines during his investigation into the school code. They have merely one man's opinion of what the code should be and face loss of federal funds if they disagree with him Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor summarized the board's feeling when he said he was tired of seeing some government official sitting in an office hundreds of miles away deciding what is best for Washington Although the board reluctantly voted to comply with the initial steps ordered by Mines, it will also request a conference with HEW representatives for an explaination of the full scope of Title IX and the avenues of appeal to official's rulings.

The letter from Mines was not the only outside regulation which annoyed the board Monday Athletic director Maurice Pfeifer submitted an athletic budget with $1,600 deficit. Even though girls sports have continually lost money, the girls basketball schedule was extended from 12 to 18 games. Pfeifer's explaination: Under Title IX, there had better be just as many games for girls as there are for Pfeifer said there was even some discussion among South Central Ohio League officials to raise the admission to girls games to the same price as the boys games. While this might better comply with the law, it would greatly hinder attendance, the group decided.

Gate prices for girls games will be lower than for the State regulations did not escape the board's ire either. In order to comply with Ohio Senate Bill No. 238, the board was required to increase the number of 'personal days' of absence from one to three days annually for all non-teaching employes. They could hardly avoid doing the same for teachers, and all school employes were granted the additional leave. Although no estimate was given, Nestor said the cost in lost work and the hiring of substitute teachers would be substantial. The board retained (or hopes to retain) its requirement that the specific purpose for the leave of absence be submitted to board members for prior approval.

Another state regulation, the Prevailing Wage and Hour law, is costing Fayette County residents money while creating a hardship for local businesses, the board said. The board was forced to accept a bid for boiler repairs which was $1,000 higher than the quote received from another firm. The law would not allow the board to accept the lower quote because the firm did not pay its employes in accordance with "prevailing wage" minimums. Nestor said the prevailing wage was, in fact, the hourly scale of union workers, and the legislation was passed by a strong union lobby.

The bill hurts local taxpayers whose money is wasted on higher costs as well as local contractors who are unable to bid on school projects, Nestor said.

Economists expect no inflation drop

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government economists expect no sharp divergence in the nation's inflation rate over the next few months, although they believe the pace of price increases will pick up before the year is over.

The Department of Labor comes out today with its report on consumer prices for May. Maynard Comiez, acting chief economist for the Commerce Department, said in an interview he expects the month's priceincrease to be in the range of April's jump of fourtenths of 1 per cent.

Economists generally are still sticking to forecasts of an increase of 6 per cent or so in consumer prices over the whole year. Since consumer prices have been going up at an annual rate in the neighborhood of 3 per cent so far this year, that means a pace will have to pick up eventually to hit the forecast.

Among the influences likely to be pushing prices up in the near future are food and fuel, the same items responsible for the increases of more than 10 per cent in some recent years. Food prices jumped in April for the first time in four months and the Agriculture Department has reported

The poor man's caviar

Fanciers of caviar whose purse does not match their taste are doubtless pleased at word that the Russians have devised a comparatively cheap substitute for sturgeon roe. They might be better off, though, not to read the recipe.

First the manufacturers add

It's a reasonable facsimile. Besides, as one Russian observed, "After a couple of vodka, who's going to care?" Not many of this side of the water. Caviar, real or ersatz, is one thing most Americans can take or leave alone.

Humphrey-Hawkins, of course, deals some of Prof. Milton Friedman's with specifics along with generalities: It would spend money to put people to work. The trouble is that this method has had a 40-year trial, beginning with such things as the WPA. The net result of Humphrey-Hawkins thinking has been 40 years of inflation, with only sporadic momentary success in taking people off relief. And always the spectre of unemployment has returned. axiomatic that money taken from present producers, whether by taxation or inflation, merely subtracts from the sum that would ordinarily be available for job-creating private investment. In Humphrey-Hawkins other words, methods tend to leave the economy wherever it happens to be at the moment they are invoked. One additional Federal job means one less job in the so-called private sector.

If we start out in the doldrums, we end in the same place. And, since it is always easier to pay the bill for Humphrey-Hawkins projects by printing new money, we have a chronic inflation

This happens to be the 200th anniversary of Adams Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," which addressed itself to the same problem that led to the formulation of the Employment Act of 1946. Smith, who was a philosopher and moralist before he ever became an economist, believed that government had the final responsibility for a lot of things. It was the policeman's and the politican's duty, he said, to provide cleanliness, safety and cheap access to economic goods for the citizens of a community

This is about as far from raw laissezfaire as one can get. But Smith, a reflective man, ovserved that when government meddled with business, it did not result either in cheapness or in plenty. The police could seize and redistribute existing "opulence," but that was what he would now call a zero sum game. It did not add to the sum total of goods to be offered for consumption.

So we come to a paradox: If it is the duty of government, under the Employment Act of 1946, to see to it that every able-bodied and ablebrained adult is gainfully at work, then it could be that Congress should turn away from Humphrey-Hawkins zero sum legislation to something like Rep. Jack Kemp's Job Creation Act. What Kemp is seeking to do is to let private industry keep enough money to pay for the new productive equipment that guarantees a steady expansion of employment.

What stands in the way of Job Creation by the Jack Kemp formula is that it would rob the politicians of some of their delights in exercising power. It would return the decision-making role in economics to the market place. But there is enough for the politicians to do in providing for the cleanliness and safety that Adam Smith considered to be the proper sphere for government. Last fall, before he was bitten by the presidential bug, Gov. Jerry Brown of California made a great hit by saying that the public should lower its expectations of what government was fitted to do. Then he spoiled it all by endorsing the principle of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill. Jimmy Carter, who began as an anti-Washington crusader, went the same route as Jerry Brown

Their original perceptions were better than their subsequent embracement of a demagogy calculated to win the McGovernites and veterans of the old New Deal wars. Maybe, if they get a chance to run the country, they will think better of their original

Once in office they would not have to cater to the left wing of the Democratic Party, whose inflationary spending philosophy has never brought us the cheapness and plenty which were the concern of Adam Smith 200 years ago.

Dear

Abby would write

to Ann for advice

DEAR ABBY: Our 29-year-old daughter has been living out of town with her boyfriend for six years.

He refuses to support her, so she comes to town when she runs out of money. Then she works until she gets enough money to go back to him. She is highly educated and employable, and makes good money in her field. What is really bothering us is that she never turns up unless she wants something. Either it's, "May I run my laundry, wash my hair, borrow your truck, fix something to eat, watch your TV, use your phone, etc., etc.' What would you say to this girl if she were yours? We are tired of being used. GRRRRRRR

DEAR GRRRRRR: If she were mine, I'd also be "tired of being used," but too chicken-hearted to tell HER, so I'd write a letter to Ann Landers and ask her what SHE'D do.

DEAR ABBY: You told the lady who wanted to meet the bachelor next door who owned a "singing" Boston terrier: "Invite him over for a T-bone steak dinner and tell him you'll save the bone for his dog.'

Abby, you should be aware that small bones (particularly cooked fowl, steak and chop bones) can kill a dog! Such bones splinter, and can puncture the digestive tract anywhere from the animal's throat to his intestines; a puncture of the stomach or intestines can cause rapid onset to peritonitis (infection in the abdominal cavity) followed by an extremely painful death. A puncture above the stomach could damage the heart, lungs or aorta, often fatally.

If the man next door loves his dog he should not feed it bones.
DOG LOVER

DEAR DOG LOVER: I'm glad you picked that bone with ME. Thanks for reminding me of something I once learned and had forgotten. Readers, are you listening?
DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the mother who didn't think her six-year-old son was old enough to be told about his real father. Well, please tell her not to wait until her son is 18 and laying flat on his back in a hospital.

That's what happened to my Eddy.
When he was an infant, his father ran off and left me. Two years later I married a wonderful man who adopted Eddy, and I changed his name to ours.

All this time I never heard from my first husband. Well, when Eddy was 18 he had a car accident and was confined to the hospital with back and head injuries. Out of the blue, his real father came to the hospital one night, claiming to be a minister, and told him that he was his real father. It almost put the kid in shock. I ended up telling him the truth, but it was one of the hardest things I ever had to do. Incidentally, his real father came to the hospital to see him again. But Eddy said, "Where were you when my mother and I needed you? I have a wonderful father now, and I don't need YOU, so please leave.

Abby, please tell parents not to hold back the truth, as I did. It would have been better had I told my son when he was a small boy and let him grow up with the idea.

New Ohio drug control act hard on pushers

Associated Press Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) provisions of Ohio's Drug Abuse Control Act are effective Thursday, with the weight of the law promising to come down hard on pushers, drug ring leaders and corrupters.

A highly-publicized section of the law decriminalizing casual use marijuana has been in effect since Nov. 21, but this week marks a new era in prosecution of hard drug offenders.

"The act assures that the pushers convicted of selling hard drugs to minors, for example, go to jail for at least seven years," explains the office of Atty. Gen. William J. Brown.

That's the key to the new penaltiesmandatory minimum sentences, ranging from three months to 12 years with no opportunity for a suspended sentence, probation or shock parole.

It also eliminates some offenses and creates new ones, more applicable to the contemporary climate. And, although the focus is on enforcement, the law is tempered in the area of treatment and rehabilitation by some compassionate elements.

Drug users who are not charged with a violent crime may request pretrial diversion from criminal prosecution to an approved treatment program. The burden, however, is placed on the user probability of rehabilitation."

Those who are successfully rehabilitated will be rewarded by a dismissal of charges and expungement of the case record. The law also leaves open the possibility of conditional probation for some drug offenses, contingent on participation in a treatment program.

The crime of possession with intent to sell has been abolished in the new language. But Asst. Atty. Gen. Michael R. Szolosi says prosecution of potential pushers will be made easier by sections setting penalties for packaging, preparing for shipment or transporting narcotics.

Also gone is a section of the law that implied guilt by association by making it a crime to frequent a place where drug abuse occurs.

Most of the penalties for possession or sale will be on a scale based on the amount and danger of the drug.

Drugs will be classified in five categories. Schedule 1 drugs-heroin, cocaine and LSD, for instance-are considered to be extremely dangerous with no ligitimate medical use. The other end of the spectrum is Schedule 5-"Drugs with low potential for abuse that are sold over the counter.

He said the new standards will attempt to coordinate the work of agencies involved in jail responsibilities and to define minimum levels of conditions and operations.

Sanborn said one purpose of the new bureau will be to avoid situations which have developed in other states in which the federal courts have assumed operational control of jails because of lawsuits over the condition of facilities. He said the bureau will not be a regulatory agency. Our goal will be to aid local officials in obtaining the technical assistance that may be needed to bring jail operations in line with the new standards," he said.

The most severe penalties are reserved for those who try to hook another on narcotics. The law calls this 'corrupting' with drugs—a device often used by pushers to create new markets, according to the attorney general. This offense means seven years behind bars for first offenders and 12 years for repeaters.

A social hour and dinner was arranged by Howard (Dink) Dellinger, general chairman, and his committee members. There were 39 graduating members present and 43 guests who all joined in a moment of silence for those 26 deceased members of the class of 1926. Following an invocation by Dellinger, dinner was served.

4-H Nutrition Clinic conducted

Questions asked by 82 4-H members, advisors and their parents at a recent Nutrition Clinic indicated that projects are being readied for the Fayette County Fair coming up July 25-31. Nancy Rapp, Junior Fairboard Member, was in charge.

Using these points, a committee of Junior Leaders and Advisors planned and conducted this clinic to help members make final preparations for their interviews, under the leadership of Nancy Rapp, Junior Fairboard member

The clinic was kicked off with each member completing an exercise on chosing snacks for good nutrition. Mrs. Juanita Wright and Mrs. Ed. Taylor helped members find reasons for the correct answers.

Lisa Jackson taught the group how to properly set an attractive and well coordinated table. Proper placement of dishes and flatware was also included in her talk. Food preparation demonstrations were given by Twila Dennis on Tacos; Kelli Gilmore on How to Shape a Loaf of Bread; Nancy Rapp on cookies; and Lisa Jackson on How To Make Salads. To teach the basics of nutrition in an interesting way the Junior Leaders presented a puppet show, "It's the Most".

To give the members a preview what judging will be like, Ann Thompson interviewed Sara Beth Rankin in a mock judging session. Members then divided into project groups to ask questions of last years outstanding project members who brought their displays. Project group discussions were led by Joanie McCoy, Lori Wilson, Lisa Jackson, Kitty Pero, Jana Hanawalt, Sara Beth Rankin, Cindy Thompson, and Kelli Gilmore. Committee members served punch and

MT summer field trip notes

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below is correspondence from Cheryl Blue, student reporter, who along with 24 Miami Trace High School students, left Fayette County June 14 for a 31-day field studies trip through the Western

June 14, 1976 Today was an exciting day for the 25 students from Miami Trace High School, who are participating in the field studies trip through the northwest. Today all of the students met at the school parking lot and the two vans were boarded and we began our journey at 6:10 a.m. Our families were there to see us off.

Our first stop was at Muscatatuck Wildlife Refuge, Ind., which is 7,702 acres in area. At the Refuge, a forest ranger, Ed Wagner, met our group in the visitor center, and gave a beautiful slide show of animals, birds and plants, which can be found in the refuge. After the slide show. Wagner took us out into the surrounding wooded area and pointed out different song birds and plants. We had doughnuts for breakfast following this short hike. When leaving the Refuge, we observed many types of waterfowl in the ponds along the first

Spring Mill State Park, near Mitchell, Ind., was our next stop. Here we visited the Gus Grisson Memorial, which was built in memory of the famous astronaut who was born in Mitchell. We saw a moving presentation about space while at the memorial.

Our next stop at Spring Hill was at the Twin Caves. Ms. Lois Mittino, a ranger, lead us through the 100 millionyear-old cave and we hiked back into the cave until-we reached an icy, cold stream. The brave members of our group then waded into the waist high water to help Ms. Mittino look for northern blind fish and crayfish. Our group failed to catch any blind fish but we did see quite a few of them. The

was able to catch a group crayfish and we brought it back for the remainder of the group to see.

Our last stop in the park was at the Pioneer Village, where we ate our

After eating, we visited a reconstructed village that existed between 1814 and 1891. The main attraction of the village was the Flour Mill by the stream. It seemed to engage everyone's attention. There was also a leather shop, a post office and many houses. In one house, there was a lady weaving a rug on a 200-year-old loom. All of the stores and houses were furnished with antique furniture. This beautiful, little village was the main attraction of Spring Mill State Park.

We stopped at a McDonald's in O'Fallon, Ill., for dinner. Everyone was really hungry. Our group later set up camp at Graham Cave State Park in Missouri. Everyone was tired but excited about the wonderful experiences ahead of us on our trip to the northwest! June 15, 1976.

The second day of our northwest trip started with breakfast. We left our campsite at Graham Cave at 8 a.m., but before leaving the park we stopped at the cave itself. This cave is known for its archeological importance. Archeologists have found many aritifacts and the bones and wood which is are located in the cave, are helpful for dating purposes, Archeologists believe that this cave was inhabited by Indians 10,000 years ago. While riding in the van, we worked on road rallies. Road rallies are observation sheets that we have to fill out while we observe the countryside. We will do these road rallies for three days and after this, we should be better

We didn't stop again until we reached the Harry S. Truman Library and Museum. We explored the museum and beautiful mural depicting the settlement of the west; the wedding dress of Harry Truman's daughter, and paintings and posters and many other items. At the back of the museum, there was the grave of Truman. The grave was lined with the flags of the 50 states. Before we left the museum, we ate lunch.

After lunch, we were back on the road again. We entered the state of Kansas and our vans halted to a stop at the Eisenhower Center in Abilene, Kan. Parts of the center were closed, but the memorial and grave of Eisenhower were open. The memorial was in the form of a chapel with beautiful stained glass windows. Inside the memorial was a small fountain and the grave itself. The chapel was beautiful and peaceful and everyone had a chance to catch up on their thoughts. We all enjoyed a jelly donut before we left the

We left Abilene, Kan., and drove until we got to Kanopolis State Park in Kansas where we set up camp. We ate dinner and then everyone went to sleep, thus ending the second day of our northwest field trip.

Inflation neutral tax introduced by Taft

Three youths charged

Burglary, auto theft suspects apprehended

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson reported today that three Washington C.H. juvenile boys have been arrested on counts of breaking and entering and auto larceny.

The youths, two of whom were aged 16 and the other 15, were arrested Monday following investigation into a Saturday incident in which a car was stolen from the Ron Farmer's Auto Supermarket lot 330 S. Main St.

The youths allegedly broke into the dealership body shop sometime between 6 and 10:51 p.m. Saturday. They obtained the keys to the car, attached a license plate to the vehicle from an adjacent car, and drove off.

The car was later found on the Lewis Road, about a mile west of Ohio 38. It was abandoned, having been left along the side of the road as a result of an accident in which a fence belonging to Paul A. Hays, 740 E. Temple St., was damaged.

TV Viewing

By LEE MARGULIES

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Radio is alive with the sound of television these days.

Television theme songs, that is. They are suddenly a hot item in the record business. Five of them are out on records at the moment and besides garnering radio airplay are selling very well.

Two have done even better than that. The themes from "S.W.A.T." and "Welcome Back, Kotter" were No. 1 on the weekly pop music sales charts at different times this spring.

The other three themes are from "Baretta," "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

That so many TV theme songs should be on record and doing well at the same time is unprecedented. There have been hit themes before — "Mission: Impossible," "Route 66," "Dr. Kildare" — but they were always rarities.

Steve Barri has a theory about why the situation has suddenly changed. He ought to. A former staff producer with ABC Records and now with Warner Bros. Records, Barri produced four of the five current releases — Cyndi Greco's "Making Our Dreams Come True" from "Laverne and Shirley" being the exception.

Barri's belief is that it's no coincidence all five hit songs come from ABC-TV series, even though the network had nothing to do with getting them recorded.

they seem to be trying to capture that younger audience in the family hour, figuring that if they can get the young people then the adults in the house will wind up watching, too.

"I think the fact that they are involved with those kind of shows means they are hitting that audience that is hip to music a little more than the audience who watches, say, 'Bob Newhart' or 'Mary Tyler Moore,' even though those are also hit shows."

Meaning that it's young people who do most of the record buying and if they hear a catchy tune on television many of them are likely to want it.

That's how this whole trend got started. Barri says he had a then-unknown group called Rhythm Heritage record "Theme from S.W.A.T." only after his 10-year-old son had beseeched him to find out where to get a copy and Barri had discovered there wasn't one.

"If you have a good song from a hit TV show, I don't see how you can miss with a record," says Barri, marvelling at the monstrous audiences that even the worst TV shows draw. "You've got a built-in acceptance already."

a built-in acceptance aiready.
But "good song" is the key, he points out. Barri thinks most TV themes are not very interesting and don't merit the additional lyrics and instrumental segments needed to stretch them into record length.

That will change soon, though, Barri predicts. Now that TV producers have seen the success good themes can have, he says, they probably will take greater care in selecting and making use of them

'Human fly' still hides true identity

MOJAVE, Calif. (AP) — The Human Fly had done his daring deed: He had flown 100 feet above the Mojave Desert strapped to the top of a DC8 jetliner.

The 29-year-old masked man gestured to the crowd below with the sign of a cross and a clenched fist. "It was a great feeling up there," he said after the flight at the California National Air Races.

"I'm the greatest daredevil in the

The performance of a latterday barnstormer was at 220 miles an hour Sunday, considerably more than the speeds of wingstanders in the biplane days.

Although dressed in gaudy white cape, red jumpsuit and red platform shoes for the 15 minute flight, The Human Fly claimed no interest in personal fame.

Throughout the flight and meetings with reporters later, his face was concealed with a red mask.

"The Fly wants to remain anonymous because he doesn't want to draw attention to himself," said his promotion agent, David Levin.

Levin claimed the Fly's steely nerve and stamina stem from his experience in an automobile accident in which 60 per cent of his body was ruined and rebuilt with steel parts.

He added that because of the Fly's hospital experience, he will donate "a substantial portion of his earnings to a recognizable charity."

The Fly seemed a bit nervous as his aides bound his chest and legs to his flying brace, but his manner was confident as man and machine descended to the runway, the man signaling victory.

Back on the ground, the Fly was dashed to doctors for a checkup and was given the go-ahead to meet reporters.

"The only problem I had up there was with my helmet," he said. "A piece came off during the flight."

Yes, you can do something about your summer electric bills

• AIR CONDITIONING IS A MAJOR FACTOR IN SUMMER ELECTRIC BILLS. The following suggestions can help you control the amount of your electric bill during the long hot summer ahead.

• SET YOUR THERMOSTAT at the highest setting which will keep you comfortable—generally about 10 degrees lower than the outside temperature. Remember, for each degree lower, your air conditioner works harder and uses more electricity!

• TURN YOUR AIR CONDITIONER OFF during cool nights. Give it an early start the next morning... before the new day's heat fills the house. When you're trying to cool off a warm house, don't start by using a colder-than-normal setting. It won't cool any faster.

GOING AWAY FOR A WEEKEND OR LONGER?

Turn the unit OFF. Leaving for several hours? Set on

EAN ONLY.

 KEEP OUT THE SUN'S HEAT by drawing drapes or lowering awnings on the sunny side of the house.
 When it's really hot, close the fresh air regulator (window units) to keep the heat outside. Open it on cool nights.

 DON'T BLOCK AIR VENTS with furniture or drapes and don't unbalance your central system by trying to maintain different temperatures in different rooms by closing air outlets.

• KEEP THE BASEMENT DOOR CLOSED. Cold air will flow to the lowest part of your house. Close the fireplace damper so cool air isn't drawn from your home through the chimney.

 CHECK YOU EQUIPMENT every year. Regular maintenance may help avoid costly repair bills. • IF YOU PLAN TO BUY AN AIR CONDITIONER THIS SUMMER, consider not only its operating features and original cost but also its "EER"—energy efficiency rating. This is a measure of how much cooling the unit will deliver for a given amount of electricity. The higher the "EER" rating, the more economically it will cool your home.

Some more energy-saving suggestions.

• Insulation is important...storm windows, weather-stripping and caulking help keep the hot air out! With proper insulation, you'll save on your utility bills all year 'round.

Rid your kitchen of cooking heat by using your exhaust fan.

 Lights, TV and most other appliances generate hear. Turn them off when they're not in use.

 Save your laundry, dishwashing and other heat-and moisture-producing activities—do them in early morning and evening.

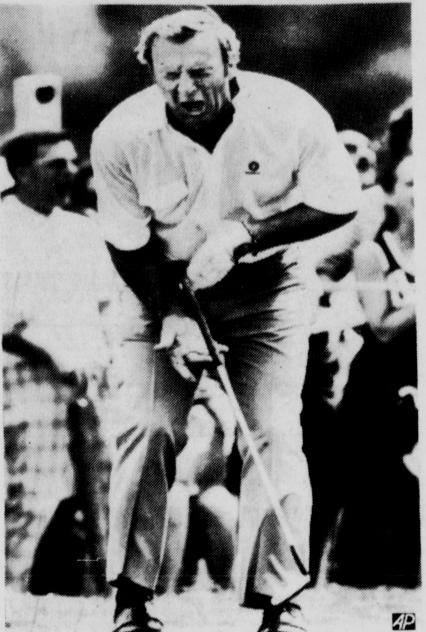

Use an exhaust fan while bathing, or open win-

 An attic exhaust fan or proper attic ventilation will help prevent the build-up of intense heat above your living area, reducing the load on your air conditioning.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - For two weeks, during the Wimbledon tournament, the British try to forget about their nation's decline and the sagging pound sterling, and concentrate on the constancy and delight of watching tennis played on the most hallowed grass in the world by the game's best players.

The 24,500 fans who swarmed into the All-England Club a few miles southwest of central London for opening day Monday, saw no big upsets. Defending champion and No. 1 seed Arthur Ashe and all the seeded men's singles players who got on court came away

Ashe, whose emotional victory over Jimmy Connors in the 1975 final still is discussed here, had a good workout against Ferdi Taygan of Framingham, Mass., a UCLA student making his Wimbledon debut. Despite 10 double faults and a couple of set points saved, Ashe emerged a 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 winner.

Connors also showed why he is the No. 2 seed and the bookmakers' favorite to regain the title he won in 1974, easily beating Antonio Zugarelli of Italy 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

The other seeds who made it to the second round were Ilie Nastase of Romania, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Adriano Panatta of Italy, Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Tom Okker of The Netherlands, John Newcombe and Tony Roche of Australia, Jaime Fillol of Chile and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Three earn Olympic berths

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) - Harvey Glance and Houston McTear, a pair of 19-year-old sprinters, and veteran Steve Riddick earned Olympic berths in the 100 meters Sunday as Steve Williams, who had been favored for a gold medal at Montreal, watched from

Glance, a freshman at Auburn, blazed to the tape in 10.11 seconds, his fastest time ever under automatic timing and a clocking that would have given him a gold medal at Munich.

McTear jumped out to a huge lead, but Glance brought the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials crowd of 12,500 people to their feet as he caught McTear with 10 meters to go.

McTear, who ran a world record 9.0 for 100 yards last year in a high school meet in Florida, took second in 10.16, but he immediately pulled up, clutching his left hamstring.

"It appears that he has pulled some muscle fibers in his hamstring," a physician, Dr. Bob Larson, said of McTear, who was helped from the field. McTear, whose 10.16 was his all-time best under automatic timing, is not entered in the 200 meters so he has a month before Montreal for the injury to

"I'd really like to make it in both sprints is possible," said Glance, who was entered in Monday's qualifying heats for the 200.

His time Sunday was the fourth fastest ever by an American. Riddick is one of the trio above him with his 10.05 last year.

Williams wasn't the only casualty in the first two days of the trials. Terry Albritton, the University of Hawaii shotputter who set an amateur world record of 71-81/2 in February, finished fourth in the finals Sunday with 67-0 and Dan Ripley, indoor world record holder in the pole vault, failed to clear 17-03/4 in the qualifying

George Woods, silver medalist in 1968 and 1972, finished one-two with throws of 69-31/2 and 69-23/4, respectively, and fast-improving Petshmock, formerly of the University of Oregon, grabbed the third spot in 68-91/4.

Mac Wilkins, the former University of Oregon strongman who holds the world mark of 232-6 in the discus, easily qualified for the finals in that event. His toss of 210-9 was second best among the 10 who advanced.

The top throw of 212-2 was by 38-yearold Jay Silvester, who is seeking a berth on his fourth Olympic team.

Kathy Schmidt, American record holder in the javelin, won that event in the only women's final. Her throw was 213-5, under her U.S. mark of 218-3 set earlier this year.

Sherry Calvert of Lakewood International was second in 191-7 and Karin Smith of UCLA earned the third berth with a toss of 187-9.

Home runs give Reds win

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer In Cincinnati, it was Souvenir Night. And in Atlanta, it was just another night at the Office.

Cincinnati's fans - two of them anyway - went home with home run balls Monday night, compliments of Ken Griffey and George Foster, who unloaded their blasts on Doug Rau's first two pitches in the sixth inning.

The result was a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles that boosted the Reds' National League West lead to 41/2 games over the Dodgers.

Atlanta's fans - all of them - got another taste of what they've gotten used to lately, namely Rowland Office's streaking.

No, not that kind. The kind with a bat. He's gotten at least one hit in his last 26 games, the longest in the league this year. He got four of them Monday night and, after the last, he trotted home on Jimmy Wynn's tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning that propelled the Braves past Houston 11-9.

In the rest of the NL, Philadelphia widened its East Division lead over idle Pittsburgh to 81/2 games by pounding Montreal 8-3, San Diego crept within half a game of the Dodgers in the West by beating San Francisco 6-3 and St. Louis mauled the New York Mets 7-2.

As Foster stepped to the plate in Cincinnati in the bottom of the sixth, the fans' cheers were only beginning to die down following Griffey's fourth home run, a mammoth blast to right field. He brought them up again with his 13th homer, a shot deep into the left field stands.

Rowland Office's four hits raised his one-time dismal .193 batting average to a potent .308.

Office had a run-scoring double in the third inning, another one in a five-run fourth, a run-scoring single in the fifth and a single prior to Wynn's decisive homer in the seventh.

Phils 8, Expos 3

Philadelphia's Tom Underwood was belted all over the joint in the early innings, but held on just long enough to pick up a victory, thanks to Garry Maddox' two-run double and Bob Boone's two-run single in the fourth Zachry all the lead he needed. He inning that wiped out Montreal's lead.

Greg Luzinski clouted his ninth homer of the season and the 100th of his big-league career one inning later.

Johnny Grubb and Willie Davis homered to carry the Padres past San Francisco. Grubb's, off John Montefusco, was a lead-off shot in the first inning. Davis' was a two-run job in the fifth that put San Diego ahead 5-0.

Dave Friesleben went the route, stopping the Giants on eight hits, including a two-run homer by pinchhitter Garry Thomason in the seventh

Miss Morehead, 19, a freshman at Tennessee State, burst from the starting block and sped to the finish line in 11.08, a shade off the world record of 11.04 set three weeks ago by West Germany's Ingrid Helten.

Second was Chandra Cheeseborough another newcomer and, at 17, the youngest U.S. Olympic team member so far. The high school junior from Jacksonville, Fla., clocked 11.13 and was followed by Evelyn Ashford of UCLA in 11.22.

Wheeler, of San Diego State, the NCAA hurdles champ, said, "It was a very rough race. I dreamed about this and I can't believe it.'

Then in the ninth, Rick Miller reached base on an infield single for the Red Sox, but Garland struck out the next batter, his 10th of the game, and the Orioles pulled off a double play to finish off Boston

Rangers 1, A's 0 Bert Blyleven earned his 100th major league victory with a splendid one-hit performance and Tom Grieve blasted a leadoff homer in the 10th inning to give

Texas its victory over Oakland.

The only hit off the Ranger righthander was a fifth-inning single by Ken McMullen. Blyleven, 5-8, struck out eight batters and walked four. Grieve's homer, his ninth of the season, came off losing pitcher Paul Mitchell, 3-4, who gave up six hits.

Yankees 6, Indians 0 Ed Figueroa's three-hit pitching, combined with the hitting and fielding third baseman Craig Nettles, sparked New York over Cleveland. The triumph by the Yankees over their nearest rivals in the American League East increased New York's division lead to eight games. The victory was the seventh straight for the streaking Yankees.

Figueroa, 8-4, struck out seven and walked two. Cleveland starter Dennis Eckersley, 3-6, was the loser. Nettles collected three hits in the game, driving in two runs and scoring two more. He also produced fielding gems in the first two innings on balls hit by Rick Manning and Frank Duffy.

Angels 2, Twins 1 Pinch-hitter Bill Melton's 10th-inning single drove home the winning run, lifting California over Minnesota. Melton's hit was the third in a row off loser Dave Goltz, who had allowed only five hits over the first nine innings.

Neil Simon's comedy hit, "God's Favorite," will open the second season of the Sabina Barn Theatre on Friday, June 25 and continuing through June 27. Repeat performances of "God's Favorite" will be staged July 16 and July 31.

"God's Favorite" is the contemporary re-telling of the story of Job. In this version, Job is a wealthy business tycoon who finds his faith tested by a mysterious midnight messenger sent by God. The plot is old, but the comedy is all new, according to Anothy J. Mangia, managing director.

Curtain times for Friday and Saturday performances are at 8:15 p.m. with an optional smorgasbordbuffet served from 6:30 p.m. A special

Ad restrictions called unfair by Brown

CLEVELAND (AP) - Atty. Gen. William J. Brown told a Federal Trade Commission hearing Monday that advertising restrictions on eyeglass were "anticonsumer and

Brown told the hearing board that at least 14 Ohio cities now have such advertising restrictions.

He said the FTC must adopt the regulation because, he said, pressure from optometrists likely will prevent repeal of local eyeglass advertising

Lillian Hellman Recalls The 1950s

SCOUNDREL TIME. By Lillian Hellman. Little, Brown. 155 Pages. $7.95.

In 1952, playwright Lillian Hellman was called to appear before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. It was not something that she wanted to do, but she did. Her appearance was relatively brief, and yet it was to haunt her for a long time.

She notes at the beginning of this most absorbing journal that she tried twice before to write about that time "but I didn't much like what I wrote.

Finally, she was able to write about that past by telling herself that "this third time out, if I stick to what I know, what, happened to me, and a few others, I have a chance to write my own history of the time.' The result is "Scoundrel Time," a highly personal memoir of a time not too long ago as it is remembered by an extremely literate and most intelligent woman. Very few pages in Miss Hellman's book are devoted to her actual appearance before the committee. Her time before it was brief, although it seemed much, much longer to her. Rather, the bulk of her book is devoted to an examination of the years preceding the 1950s and how what came about did

In clear, clean prose, Miss Hellman tells what life was like for her and some of her friends such as Dashiell Hammett before her appearance and what it was like after. Used to money, and finding it short after her appearance, she was forced to give up many things she valued. But after the initial shock of loss she recovered and now can say philosophically, "Loss of money can take away what you like and have been good at, but in my case, I am now certain that without the trouble I would have stayed in one place, one frame too long.'

Miss Hellman has survived, endured, and her memories of what was and is are extremely interesting.

AGENT IN PLACE. By Helen MacInnes. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 339 Pages. $8.95.

Helen MacInnes fans will doubtless be enthralled with this latest thriller by a veteran author of spy novels. It has a smoothly worked out plot that builds to a smashing crescendo. But there are some flaws, too.

The book deals with an allout effort by Soviet intelligence to get its hands on a top secret NATO memorandum. Matters are complicated by the actions of an idealistic American junior diplomat who thinks the U.S. public should have a clearer idea of what's going on behind the scenes. Unaware how explosive some of the material in the memorandum is, he feeds it to a journalist, thereby blowing the cover of a top western operative stationed in Moscow.

The Russian agents, it turns out, have a formidable opponent in a British operative, posing as a wine dealer, with an able team of assistants who proceed to counter each move by the other side. There ensues an international chase that winds up in a little resort town on the French Riviera. It soon becomes the center of a deadly struggle that leaves a few bodies scattered about.

Miss MacInnes paints an in-triguing picture of the cloak and dagger set but leans a little too heavily on coincidence to keep the plot intact. Her characters also indulge in a bewildering assortment of fake mustaches, wigs, false limps and other props that one doubts a real-life agent would resort to. In the main, however, it is a fast-moving piece of writing that is hard to put down once you have gotten into the action.

In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

They say that if you want people to believe what you write don't start out with such a wild statement that people can't possibly buy it. So we start out with a news flash that Kodak has just reduced the prices of most of their still camera line. No kidding! We can't believe that this indicates the beginning of a trend, but it's great to see something go down in price. In the past few days we've had a chance to see some of the beautiful pictures our local folks are shooting out through the West. Rocky Mountain National Park offers beautiful scenes for the lensman and some of the slides we've seen show that our local photographers are able to catch the beauty on film. It sorta gives us the itch to pack up cameras and film, lock up the shop, and head west. In fact, if business were a little better - or a little worse - that's just what we'd do!

CIBACHROME is the magic key to color print fun, and many of the local folks have discovered this route to breath-taking color prints from their favorite slides. Easy? As I've said before, even Osgood would have no trouble with this stuff. In fact, if you see Osgood, tell him to come in and get a CIBACHROME outfit, and I guarantee he'll have some prizewinners out of his first batch. If you've not seen the kind of color print you can get from CIBACHROME, you just can't imagine how much better the print quality is compared to the color enlargements you have been seeing. This stuff is something else. And wait and see some of the beautiful CIBACHROME prints of the scenery in Rocky Mountain National Park

Armed robbery

A reported strong armed robbery occurred outside of Fayette County Memorial Hospital on Monday, according to Washington C.H. police officers

Mary Jo Wilson, Sabina, told police officers that while she was inside of Fayette County Memorial Hospital, a female subject approached her and requested that she go outside at 5 p.m.

Once outside, she said, the subject knocked her down, causing her to lose her glasses. The subject then reportedly drove off in a car with Ms. Wilson's glasses. The glasses were valued at $50.

A purse containing $22 in cash was reported stolen from Beverly Callahan, 213 E. Paint St. The purse was allegedly stolen from her car as it was parked in the Kroger Co. store parking reported to have sustained $10 in damage as a result of kicking by vandals sometime during the early hours of Tuesday.

The front door of the Emerald Inn nearby

An auto mirror valued at $15 was reportedly stolen from a car belonging to Mary M. King, 610 Charlotte Court, as it was parked in front of Buckeye Mart sometime between 6 and 6:30

Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that two bicycles belonging to Dennis O. Howard, 32, of 1293 Dayton Ave., were damaged when vandals apparently kicked the spokes of the wheels

The incident is believed to have occurred sometime Sunday or Monday, while the bicycles were located at the rear of the residence. The perpetrators also allegedly stole a basketball net

She had attempted to leave the store with the steaks in her purse, police officers reported.

For possession of less than 100 grams of marijuana, Steven L. Southworth, 20, of 314 Forrest St., was fined $75. He and companion had been arrested Saturday by Fayette County sheriff's deputies after it was discovered that the marijuana was present in their car. For trespassing on private property, Gary W. OSU to get investigation clearinghouse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The school of journalism at Ohio State University says it plans to open a nationwide clearinghouse for investigative reporters early next year.

Prof. Paul Williams will direct the program, which he says has a sizeable commitment from the university. OSU officials, he said, have agreed to provide space and perso project, which is to be fully operational

The project has evolved over the last two years and was announced over the weekend in Indianapolis, Ind.

Williams said the idea for the center grew out of the formation of Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., formed a year ago at a meeting in Reston, Va.

"The primary purpose of the center is educational. We want to help people in the business to do better work.

For example, if a reporter in Kokomo, Ind., is working on Federal Housing Authority fraud, we can direct him to several investigations already done and put him up about 10 steps on the ladder," Williams said.

The professor said Ohio State University's choice to house the center grew out of his interest in investigative reporting, the school's course on the subject and its heavy curriculum of public service reporting.

City board ponders anticipated deficit

The estimated revenue of the Washington C.H. School District will fall almost $150,000 short of the anticipated 1977 expenditures, according to a budget draft submitted Monday by Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor.

In light of the projected deficit, the city school board will consider presenting a tax increase request to voters in the November general

Actually, the "increase" being contemplated would merely restore millage which the district expects to see rolled back due to the reappraisal.

Nestor said that the reappraisal of Washington C.H. property increased values and projected revenue for the city schools. However, in accordance with present tax laws, the millage is rolled back so that the schools receive the same amount of money after reappraisal as they had beforehand.

Unlike the Miami Trace School District which is sitting on the state minimum tax rate of 20 mills for school operations, the Washington C.H. School District has had 22.7 mills of operating tax. Nestor said that the auditor is required to reduce the present school millage to 20.5 mills so it will bring only the dollar amount city residents voted for the school operations. Increased operating expenses of $168,000 have created the deficit. The board is considering a 2.5 mill request which would generate somewhat in excess of $100,000. Although it would be termed "new" millage, it would simply restore the millage lost in the reappraisal. Nestor noted. It would not increase the present tax rate.

 Coffee Break

THE WSHS gymnasium will be open for use by students each Tuesday and Thursday night during the sum-.The gym will be open from 7 until 10 p.m. each of the two

Through the efforts of the Community Education program and school officials, elementary age students will be able to use the gym from 7 until 8 . Middle School students are invited from 8 until 9 p.m., and high school students may use the facility from 9 until 10 p.m.

The program is scheduled to continue

Nestor is to present figures at the next meeting to reflect any additional budget cuts he can muster as well as estimates of what the 2.5 mills of tax

Although House Bill No. 920 has now been approved by the Ohio legislature, unfortunately, no one in Washington C.H., including Fayette County auditor Mary Morris, has been able to Figure out just what effect it will have on taxing authorities.

A long awaited "tax relief" bill, it will presumably offer aid and comfort to overburdened taxpayers. If this is the case, it is unlikely to offer the school board any additional revenue. If it effects the school revenue at all, there will be a decrease, not an increase, officials agreed.

THE DATE of the next board meeting was changed from July 19 to July 12. Since the 1977 budget must be approved by July 15, the board agreed to meet and consider it in conjunction with its regular meeting by changing the meeting date.

Maurice Pfeifer attended Monday's meeting to discuss the accelerated mathematics program initiated in the Middle School last year.

He said that only one student in the class of 35 decided to drop the course even though students condensed more than two years normal work into one school year.

Pfeifer explained that the accelerated class of seventh graders completed the seventh grade text, the eighth grade text and studied a few weeks of algebra before the school year

The class was termed an outstanding success by Pfeifer, who is a guidance counselor at the Washington C. H. Middle School. He said the class average for the year was 85 per cent, a B-plus average.

Forty students entering the seventh grade have been accepted for the same class next year. They will continue in an accelerated math program throughout their high school careers.

The program was initiated because it was felt that college-bound students graduating from Washington Senior High School were encountering difficulty coping with college math courses, especially those pursuing engineering degrees.

Three teachers were named for positions as varsity athletic coaches. Paul Ondrus, newly recruited football coach from Bowling Green State University, will also serve as head baseball coach.

ROME (AP) - The Communists again missed a majority in the Cham- crisis over the formation of a new Christian Democratic government. It also meant that action to ease Italy's grave economic crisis is a long way off.

Despite the prospect of continuing political and economic instability, the stock market and the lira rallied because of the Communists' failure to displace the Christian Democrats as the country's largest party.

Gains in early trading on the Milan stock exchange averaged 2.5 per cent while the lira rose from 854 to the dollar to 844-848. Then speculators took their gains, realization of the uncertain future overcame the initial en-thusiasm, most blue chips closed below their Monday level, and the lira inched down to 848-850.

More than one out of three voters cast Communist ballot in the elections Sunday and Monday for a new Chamber of Deputies, boosting the party from 27.2 per cent of the vote in 1972 to 34.6 per cent. The Vaticanbacked Christian Democrats got 38.6 per cent, compared to 38.7 per cent four

This gave the Christian Democrats the chance to form their 35th government since World War II. But to get the parliamentary majority necessary for effective government, they needed to rebuild their center-left coalition with the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans which collapsed in January. And the Socialists said during the election campaign that the coalition was a dead issue.

Communist party secretary Enrico Berlinguer, surveying a sea of clenched fists and red flags below the balcony of his Rome headquarters, said the election result was "a great leap forward."

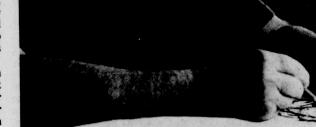

We will have to deal with the Christian Democrats, and they will finally realize that they have to deal with us," he declared.

However, the Christian Democrats campaigned on a pledge to keep the Communists out of the government. And Berlinguer ruled out "a head-on clash," saying: "The Communist party is not in a hurry to go into the government. It was not before. It is not now, even if it has obtained a big result."

There was no immediate comment on the election outcome from the U.S. government, which repeatedly warned that admission of the Communists to the government would endanger relations between the Italian and American governments and Italy's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But the failure of the Communists to lead the voting undoubtedly was a relief for President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Final returns from the voting for the Chamber of Deputies gave the Christian Democrats 14.2 million votes, the Communists 12.6 million, the Socialists 3.5 million, the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI) 2.2 million, the Democratic Socialists 1.2 million and the Republicans 1.1 million. Smaller parties and joint tickets divided the rest.

The Christian Democrats won 263 seats in the 630-seat chamber, a loss of three, and were 53 short of a majority. The Communists increased their standing from 179 seats to 227.

President, Reagan to fall short of needed delegates

By TERRY RYAN Associated Press Writer

President Ford and Ronald Reagan will both fall short of the delegates needed for the Republican nomination when the last delegates are chosen in seven states, party leaders and cam-paign officials in those states say.

The nomination would then hinge on 159 uncommitted delegates now being courted and cajoled by both camps. Ford was off today for Indiana on his

Richard Crooks, this year's head track and golf coach, will continue to serve in those positions for the 1976-77

One coaching vacancy remains open Jon Creamer, assistant varsity football coach last year, has decided not to accept the post this fall. Other resignations approved by the board were submitted by Mrs. Jacqueline Loudner, Title I reading teacher, and from Carmen Frogale, assistant athletic director.

TEXTBOOKS for classes in English were approved for purchase. A business law workbook was also approved.

The review of health books is continuing, but it appears that no new texts will be purchased. The committee reviewing the books is inclined to suggest teaching from pamphlets and other available materials and use the controversial health book as a teachers manual and reference work. In light of the budget deficit, the board is not eager to purchase new books.

The board approved the rental of two rooms in the Middle School by the Fayette County Community Action Commission for the coming school year. The CAC will operate Headstart programs for pre-school youngsters in the two classrooms.

A former student who has been imprisoned for theft requested permission to attend classes if he can obtain a parole. The board reviewed his record and a personal statement and then approved the request.

Economists expect no inflation drop economists expect no sharp divergence in the nation's inflation rate over the next few months, although they believe the pace of price increases will pick up before the year is over. The Department of Labor comes out today with its report on consumer prices for May. Maynard Comiez, acting chief economist for the Commerce Department, said in an interview he expects the month's priceincrease to be in the range of April's jump of fourtenths of 1 per cent. Economists generally are still sticking to forecasts of an increase of 6 per cent or so in consumer prices over the whole year. Since consumer prices have been going up at an annual rate in the neighborhood of 3 per cent so far this year, that means a pace will have to pick up eventually to hit the forecast.

Among the influences likely to be pushing prices up in the near future are food and fuel, the same items responsible for the increases of more than 10 per cent in some recent years.

Food prices jumped in April for the first time in four months and the Agriculture Department has reported

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government that the prices received by farmers over the last two months have been going up. That means higher prices are in prospect eventually for pork, beef and other items, even if those increases don't show up at the consumer level in

> Gasoline prices also are edging up now that motorists are traveling more and the government is gradually lifting controls on various petroleum

> In the case of neither food nor fuel, however, is the pace of increase expected to be very sharp yet. Wholesale prices, whose movements roughly coincide with retail price movements, rose three-tenths of 1 per cent over-all in May, compared with an eight-tenths of 1 per cent increase in April.

There were also these economic developments Monday:

The Federal Energy ministration told Congress that the price of home-heating oil will rise by four cents a gallon over the next 30 months regardless of federal price

The FEA also said it sees no basis for fears that prices will rise sharply if controls are ended. Unless either the House or Senate disapproves, controls on heating oil, diesel and other socalled middle distillates will end June 30.

FEA's predictions on prices were disputed by several witnesses.

-The Commerce Department reported that new orders received by manufacturers of durable goods recovered in May after a month of stagnation in April. The department also said that the backlog of unfilled orders for durable goods rose in May, marking the first significant increase in the backlog since September 1974. -The Levitz Furniture Corp., one of the nation's largest furniture retailers, settled an Federal Trade Commission complaint about charges of false and misleading sales representation. The FTC accepted a consent agreement that bars Levitz, which has 60 stores in 27 states, from future misrepresentations about its prices or products and from failing to make refur.ds to customers when merited.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Libyan and Syrian peacekeeping troops brought hostilities between Syrian forces and Palestinian guerrillas to a standstill today, but Lebanon's Moslem-Christian civil war raged on.

Spokesmen for the warring Moslem and Christian Lebanese forces reported artillery duels and machine-gun clashes in Beirut and on other fronts. Security officials said 47 persons were killed and 78 were wounded during the

However, spokesmen for Palestinian guerrillas and for the June 1 said their battlefronts had calmed down since the arrival Monday of the 1,000-man vanguard of the pan-Arab peacekeeping force the Arab League is raising.

Taking advantage of this calm along the route to Syria, the British Embassy sent an evacuation convoy of 33 cars and six buses to Damascus. panel power cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - House leaders are moving to cut some of the powers of the House Administration Committee, the source of Rep. Wayne Hays' clout until he resigned as chairman in the wake of the payroll-sex

A team of three House Democrats headed by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., is expected to recommend today that the House take back the power it turned over to Hays and the Administration panel in 1971 to increase member's staffs, travel money and other allowances.

Hays, a Democrat from Ohio, formally resigned as chairman of the Administration Committee on Monday and is expected to be replaced by Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey. Hays is on his Ohio farm recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills.

The recommendations of Obey's panel were to be made to the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, a panel made up of the party's · House leadership, which is expected to approve the proposals.

Speaker Carl Albert had appointed the team to devise ways of improving House payroll and accounting practices following allegations by Elizabeth Ray that Hays put her on his committee payroll at $14,000 a year to furnish him with sex. Hays admitted a relationship with Miss Ray but insisted she did committee work for her salary.

House Republicans have introduced a bill that also would strip the Administration Committee of the power to increase certain benefits bestowed on House members. GOP House leader John Rhodes said such control gave Hays a great amount of power because it made House members beholden to him for benefits.

One reason the House endowed Hays' committee with such power was that it permitted House members to get bigger allowances for staff, travel, stationery and other expenses without having to vote on them.

During the course of his chairmanship beginning in 1971, Hays and his committee increased House staff hiring allowances $238,584 a year from $204.720: staff sizes to 18 from 16; members' trips home to 26 from 18, plus six trips a year for member's staffs.

Hays' committee also increased the travel money that members can draw in cash in lieu of filing vouchers for each trip to a maximum of $2,250 a year

The full House is expected to act on accounting reforms early next week. Rep. William Armstrong, RColo., announced that he will propose an amendment calling for a full audit of House expenditures by the General Accounting Office.

Industrial powers adopt guidelines

PARIS (AP) - The United States and other non-Communist industrial powers have approved voluntary anticorruption guidelines for multinational corporations.

The code of conduct, a direct result of the Lockheed scandals, was adopted Monday by 23 of the 24 members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). Turkey abstained but it was not known

The code calls on corporations whose operations across national boundaries make them difficult to police not to offer bribes to public servants, to 'abstain from any improper involvement in local political activities,' to publish financial statements "and other pertinent information relating to the enterprise as a whole" at least once a year, and to "refrain from actions which would adversely affect competition. The code also calls on multinationals to pay the correct amount of taxes in the countries in which profits are earned and to respect the right of employes to unionize and bargain

The code is aimed at encouraging "the positive contributions which multinational enterprises can make to economic and social progress and to minimize and resolve the difficulties to which their various operations may give rise," an OECD statment said.

"We don't claim we have solved all the problems, but we are certain we have made an important first step toward resolving the issue of multinational firms," said the current OECD chairman, Panayis Papaligouras of Greece.

There was no indication that any of the OECD governments might do anything in the way of laws to make the code legally binding. After the disclosures that the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and more than 30 U.S. firms had been making payoffs abroad to promote their business, President Ford in midApril created a task force to recommend possible corrective action, but it has made no report yet.

and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies from a string of mountain villages overlooking the Christian enclave north of Beirut. The sources said Assad also repeated that his army will remain in northern and eastern Lebanon until the Lebanese end their civil war at a roundtable peace conference. Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy landing ship Spiegel Grove arrived in Greece this morning with the 110 Americans and 157 other foreigners it evacuated from Beirut Sunday. A crowd of friends, relatives and consular officials greeted them at Piraeus, the port of

In Washington, the State Department said a second evacuation may be undertaken if the situation warrants. More than 1,300 other Americans, most of them dual citizens of Lebanon and the United States or persons married to Lebanese, refused to leave last weekend despite the murder of U.S. Ambassador Frances E. Meloy Jr. and an American member of his staff.

avoid open fights over the party's 1976

We will start from the premise that the platform should be short, concise, but with enough detail to have meaning," he said.

According to an Associated Press count, Ford held a 72-delegate lead today with 1,006 to Reagan's 934. It will take 1,130 delegates to capture the nomination. There are 157 delegates still to be chosen at Republican conventions and caucuses in Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Colorado and Utah.

By the estimate of his own campaigners in those states, Ford will pick up 90 of the remaining delegates and Reagan 67. That would leave the tally at 1,096 for Ford and 1,001 for Reagan.

The Reagan campaign has a different view of the remaining states, seeing the former California governor winning 101 delegates to 56 for Ford. That count would leave the totals of 1,062 for Ford and 1,035 for Reagan.

The Reagan tally would put the President only 27 delegates ahead after the last delegates are chosen July 16 in Connecticut and Utah. The Ford count would put the President ahead by 95 delegates, but still 34 votes short of the

GOP platform to avoid issues

Democrats, the Republican party may draft a platform for the 1976 campaign that walks softly on the big issues.

With both President Ford and Ronald Reagan agreeing on most issues, one party official said that if there are any significant disputes, they likely would arise in the foreign policy area.

But a key objective in platform committee debates probably will be to avoid controversy in an effort to unite the Grand Old Party going into the fall presidential campaign.

The Democrats drafted a unity platform last week, and Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, chairman of the temporary Republican platform com-mittee, told reporters Monday that unity may be a good goal for the Republicans, too.

"We will start from the premise that WASHINGTON (AP) - Like the the platform should be short, concise, but with enough detail to have meaning," he said.

Ray said both Ford and Reagan have said they will cooperate in drafting a platform to "avoid floor fights."

He said he thinks both men agree on most of the issues that the platform will address and that the "few items of disagreement," if any, would be in the area of international affairs.

Ray said potentially divisive issues such as abortion, busing and amnesty also will be considered by the platform committee. 'They are legitimate questions before the platform committee, but I can't tell you at this time whether they will be in the platform or not," he said. He added, "We would like to avoid a floor fight if possible, ..." an indication

he hopes that such issues would not be addressed in any detail that would arouse emotions within various party

Drafting of the GOP platform will not begin until the week before the party's national convention in Kansas City in midAugust, and it will be subject to approval by the convention.

The party's temporary platform committee was holding public hearings here Monday and today. It held hearings in Los Angeles last week and will hold another hearing in Ames, Iowa, on Thursday.

Both Ford and Reagan will have representatives on the committee, and Ray promised to appoint subcommittee chairmen who will hear "both sides" in drafting a platform. Ray himself has endorsed Ford's bid for the party presidential nomination.

Market nears previous high

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market pushed ahead again today in a bid to surpass its previous 1976 peak. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up about a point at around the 1,008 level in the early going. Gainers took a 5-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange listed issues. In the economic news, the Labor Department reported that its consumer price index rose at a 7.2 per cent annual rate last month for its biggest increase in six months.

But the figure appeared to be about what Wall Street had expected.

NCR, the early volume leader among Big Board stocks, slipped 1/4 to 321/4 in a 175,000-share block trade.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.57 to 1,007.45, moving to within 4 points of its previous closing high for the year of 1,011.02. Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues.

and the exchange's composite index added .25 to 55.53. Big Board volume was a moderate 18.93 million shares. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .16 at 105.05.

treaty will allow Congress to monitor Spain's progress The Senate voted 84 to 11 Monday to ratify the five-year treaty which gives the new regime a $1.2-billion package

"Franco's demise has opened real possibilites for progressive change," Sen. Richard Clark, D-Iowa, said Monday. He noted that some in the Senate fought early ratification of the treaty pending evidence that a rebirth of democratic institutions had been

Fanciers of caviar whose purse does not match their taste are doubtless pleased at word that the Russians have devised a comparatively cheap substitute for sturgeon roe. They might be better off, though, not to read the recipe.

First the manufacturers add

gelatin to casein in distilled water. The resultant mess is whipped up in a centrifuge which forms it into tiny white balls - which are then colored black in an extract of tea and iron chloride. The pellets are washed in salt water; then nutrients and flavors (from salmon and herring

roe) are added. Result: instant caviar.

It's a reasonable facsimile. Besides, as one Russian observed, "After a couple of vodka, who's going to care?" Not many of this side of the water. Caviar, real or ersatz, is one thing most Americans can take or leave alone.

Mathematics of unemployment

Speaking of redundant legislation, as we were the other day, why do we need a Humphrey-Hawkins bill to tell us that it should be the business of the U.S. Congress to push unemployment back to a bearable three per cent of the working population? We already have the Employment Act of 1946, sometimes called the Full Employment Act, that makes it mandatory for the Federal government to do whatever it takes to keep people busy.

Humphrey-Hawkins, of course, deals some of Prof. Milton Friedman's with specifics along with generalities: It would spend money to put people to work. The trouble is that this method has had a 40-year trial, beginning with such things as the WPA. The net result of Humphrey-Hawkins thinking has been 40 years of inflation, with only sporadic momentary success in taking people off relief. And always the spectre of unemployment has returned.

economic wisdom, which makes it axiomatic that money taken from present producers, whether by taxation or inflation, merely subtracts from the sum that would ordinarily be available for job-creating private investment. In other words, Humphrey-Hawkins methods tend to leave the economy wherever it happens to be at the moment they are invoked. One additional Federal job means one less job in the so-called private sector.

If we start out in the doldrums, we end in the same place. And, since it is always easier to pay the bill for Humphrey-Hawkins projects by printing new money, we have a chronic inflation.

This happens to be the 200th anniversary of Adams Smith's "The Wealth of Nations," which addressed itself to the same problem that led to the formulation of the Employment Act of 1946. Smith, who was a philosopher and moralist before he ever became an economist, believed that government had the final responsibility for a lot of things. It was the policeman's and the politican's duty, he said, to provide cleanliness, safety and cheap access to economic goods for the citizens of a community.

This is about as far from raw laissezfaire as one can get. But Smith, a reflective man, ovserved that when government meddled with business, it did not result either in cheapness or in plenty. The police could seize and redistribute existing "opulence," but that was what he would now call a zero sum game. It did not add to the sum total of goods to be offered for consumption.

So we come to a paradox: If it is the duty of government, under the Employment Act of 1946, to see to it that every able-bodied and ablebrained adult is gainfully at work, then it could be that Congress should turn away from Humphrey-Hawkins zero sum legislation to something like Rep. Jack Kemp's Job Creation Act. What Kemp is seeking to do is to let private industry keep enough money to pay for the new productive equipment that guarantees a steady expansion of employment. What stands in the way of Job Creation by the Jack Kemp formula is that it would rob the politicians of some of their delights in exercising power. It would return the decision-making role in economics to the market place. But there is enough for the politicians to do in providing for the cleanliness and safety that Adam Smith considered to be the proper sphere for government.

Last fall, before he was bitten by the presidential bug, Gov. Jerry Brown of California made a great hit by saying that the public should lower its expectations of what government was fitted to do. Then he spoiled it all by endorsing the principle of the Hum-phrey-Hawkins bill. Jimmy Carter, who began as an anti-Washington crusader, went the same route as Jerry Brown.

Their original perceptions were better than their subsequent embracement of a demagogy calculated to win the McGovernites and veterans of the old New Deal wars. Maybe, if they get a chance to run the country, they will think better of their original

Once in office they would not have to cater to the left wing of the Democratic Party, whose inflationary spending philosophy has never brought us the cheapness and plenty which were the concern of Adam Smith 200 years ago.

Paraplegic nurse can't find work

LIMA, Ohio (AP) - A 1971 motorcycle accident and resulting hospital stay demonstrated to Keith Slemmer the need for good nurses

Dear Abby:

Abby would write

to Ann for advice

DEAR ABBY: Our 29-year-old daughter has been living out of town with her boyfriend for six years.

He refuses to support her, so she comes to town when she runs out of money. Then she works until she gets enough money to go back to him. She is highly educated and employable, and makes good money in her field.

What is really bothering us is that she never turns up unless she wants something. Either it's, "May I run my laundry, wash my hair, borrow your truck, fix something to eat, watch your TV, use your phone, etc., etc.'

What would you say to this girl if she were yours? We are tired of being used.

GRRRRRRR

DEAR GRRRRRR: If she were mine, I'd also be "tired of being used," but too chicken-hearted to tell HER, so I'd write a letter to Ann Landers and ask her what SHE'D do.

DEAR ABBY: You told the lady who wanted to meet the bachelor next door who owned a "singing" Boston terrier: "Invite him over for a T-bone steak dinner and tell him you'll save the bone for his dog.'

Abby, you should be aware that small bones (particularly cooked fowl, steak and chop bones) can kill a dog! Such bones splinter, and can puncture the digestive tract anywhere from the animal's throat to his intestines; a puncture of the stomach or intestines can cause rapid onset to peritonitis (infection in the abdominal cavity) followed by an extremely painful death. A puncture above the stomach could damage the heart, lungs or aorta,

If the man next door loves his dog he should not feed it bones.

DOG LOVER

DEAR DOG LOVER: I'm glad you picked that bone with ME. Thanks for reminding me of something I once learned and had forgotten. Readers, are you listening?
DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the mother who didn't think her six-year-old son was old enough to be told about his real father. Well, please tell her not to wait until her son is 18 and laying flat on his back in a hospital. That's what happened to my Eddy.

When he was an infant, his father ran off and left me. Two years later married a wonderful man who adopted Eddy, and I changed his name to ours. All this time I never heard from my first husband. Well, when Eddy was 18 he had a car accident and was confined to the hospital with back and head injuries. Out of the blue, his real father came to the hospital one night, claiming to be a minister, and told him that he was his real father. It almost put the kid in shock

I ended up telling him the truth, but it was one of the hardest things I ever had to do. Incidentally, his real father came to the hospital to see him again. But Eddy said, "Where were you when my mother and I needed you? I have a wonderful father now, and I don't need YOU, so please leave.'

Abby, please tell parents not to hold back the truth, as I did. It would have been better had I told my son when he was a small boy and let him grow up with the idea.

On this date In 1773, Dominican friars entered what is now California and established the first settlement. In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte was forced to abdicate for the second time. In 1870, Congress established the Department of Justice. In 1911, Britain's King George V and Queen Mary were crowned in London. In 1937, Joe Louis became the world heavyweight boxing champion by knocking out Jim Braddock in a match in Chicago.

New Ohio drug control act hard on pushers

Associated Press Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Final provisions of Ohio's Drug Abuse Control Act are effective Thursday, with the weight of the law promising to come down hard on pushers, drug ring leaders and corrupters.

A highly-publicized section of the law decriminalizing casual use of marijuana has been in effect since Nov. 21, but this week marks a new era in prosecution of hard drug offenders.

"The act assures that the pushers convicted of selling hard drugs to minors, for example, go to jail for at least seven years," explains the office of Atty. Gen. William J. Brown.

That's the key to the new penaltiesmandatory minimum sentences, ranging from three months to 12 years, with no opportunity for a suspended sentence, probation or shock parole.

It also eliminates some offenses and creates new ones, more applicable to the contemporary climate. And, although the focus is on enforcement, the law is tempered in the area of treatment and rehabilitation by some compassionate elements.

Drug users who are not charged with a violent crime may request pretrial diversion from criminal prosecution to an approved treatment program. The burden, however, is placed on the user

Questions asked by 82 4-H members, cookies to those in attendance advisors and their parents at a recent Nutrition Clinic indicated that projects are being readied for the Fayette County Fair coming up July 25-31. Nancy Rapp, Junior Fairboard Member, was in charge.

Using these points, a committee of Junior Leaders and Advisors planned and conducted this clinic to help members make final preparations for their interviews, under the leadership of Nancy Rapp, Junior Fairboard

The clinic was kicked off with each member completing an exercise on chosing snacks for good nutrition. Mrs. Juanita Wright and Mrs. Ed. Taylor helped members find reasons for the correct answers.

Lisa Jackson taught the group how to properly set an attractive and well coordinated table. Proper placement of dishes and flatware was also included in her talk. Food preparation demonstrations were given by Twila Dennis on Tacos; Kelli Gilmore on How to Shape a Loaf of Bread; Nancy Rapp on cookies; and Lisa Jackson on How To Make Salads. To teach the basics of nutrition in an interesting way the Junior Leaders presented a puppet show, "It's the Most".

To give the members a preview what judging will be like, Ann Thompson interviewed Sara Beth Rankin in a mock judging session. Members then divided into project groups to ask questions of last years outstanding project members who brought their displays. Project group discussions were led by Joanie McCoy, Lori Wilson, Lisa Jackson, Kitty Pero, Jana Hanawalt, Sara Beth Rankin, Cindy Thompson, and Kelli Gilmore. Committee members served punch and

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below correspondence from Cheryl Blue, student reporter, who along with 24 Miami Trace High School students, left Fayette County June 14 for a 31-day field studies trip through the Western

June 14, 1976 Today was an exciting day for the 25 students from Miami Trace High School, who are participating in the field studies trip through the northwest. Today all of the students met at the school parking lot and the two vans were boarded and we began our journey at 6:10 a.m. Our families were there to see us off.

Our first stop was at Muscatatuck Wildlife Refuge, Ind., which is 7,702 acres in area. At the Refuge, a forest ranger, Ed Wagner, met our group in the visitor center, and gave a beautiful slide show of animals, birds and plants, which can be found in the refuge. After the slide show, Wagner took us out into the surrounding wooded area and pointed out different song birds and plants. We had doughnuts for breakfast following this short hike. When leaving the Refuge, we observed many types of waterfowl in the ponds along the first

Spring Mill State Park, near Mitchell, Ind., was our next stop. Here we visited the Gus Grisson Memorial, which was built in memory of the famous astronaut who was born in Mitchell. We saw a moving presentation about space while at the

Our next stop at Spring Hill was at the Twin Caves. Ms. Lois Mittino, a ranger, lead us through the 100 millionyear-old cave and we hiked back into the cave until we reached an icy, cold stream. The brave members of our group then waded into the waist high water to help Ms. Mittino look for northern blind fish and crayfish. Our group failed to catch any blind fish but we did see quite a few of them. The

was able to catch a group crayfish and we brought it back for the remainder of the group to see. Our last stop in the park was at the Pioneer Village, where we ate our

After eating, we visited a reconstructed village that existed between 1814 and 1891. The main attraction of the village was the Flour Mill by the stream. It seemed to engage everyone's attention. There was also a leather shop, a post office and many houses. In one house, there was a lady weaving a rug on a 200-year-old loom. All of the stores and houses were furnished with antique furniture. This beautiful, little village was the main attraction of Spring Mill State Park.

We stopped at a McDonald's in O'Fallon, Ill., for dinner. Everyone was really hungry. Our group later set up camp at Graham Cave State Park in Missouri. Everyone was tired but excited about the wonderful ex-periences ahead of us on our trip to the northwest!

June 15, 1976.

The second day of our northwest trip started with breakfast. We left our campsite at Graham Cave at 8 a.m., but before leaving the park we stopped at the cave itself. This cave is known for its archeological importance. Archeologists have found many aritifacts and the bones and wood which is are located in the cave, are helpful for dating purposes, Archeologists believe that this cave was inhabited by Indians 10,000 years ago.

While riding in the van, we worked on road rallies. Road rallies are observation sheets that we have to fill out while we observe the countryside. We will do these road rallies for three days and after this, we should be better observers beautiful mural depicting the settlement of the west; the wedding dress of Harry Truman's daughter, and paintings and posters and many other items. At the back of the museum, there was the grave of Truman. The grave was lined with the flags of the 50 states. Before we left the museum, we ate lunch.

We didn't stop again until we reached the Harry S. Truman Library and Museum. We explored the museum and

After lunch, we were back on the road again. We entered the state of Kansas and our vans halted to a stop at the Eisenhower Center in Abilene, Kan. Parts of the center were closed, but the memorial and grave of Eisenhower were open. The memorial was in the form of a chapel with beautiful stained glass windows. Inside the memorial was a small fountain and the grave itself. The chapel was beautiful and peaceful and everyone had a chance to catch up on their thoughts. We all enjoyed a jelly donut before we left the

We left Abilene, Kan., and drove until we got to Kanopolis State Park in Kansas where we set up camp. We ate dinner and then everyone went to sleep, thus ending the second day of our northwest field trip.

Yours truly. Miami Trace Field Studies Group Cheryl Blue, reporter

Inflation neutral tax introduced by Taft

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, introduced a tax bill Monday which he says would prevent inflation from pushing wage earners into higher tax brackets without an equivalent raise in spendable income.

Taft calls the bill "inflation neutral tax" and says it would require yearly adjustments of the personal exemption, the standard deduction and tax brackets in accordance with the government-kept Consumer Price Index.

He said labor department statistics

Burglary, auto theft suspects apprehended

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. license plate to the vehicle from an Thompson reported today that three Washington C.H. juvenile boys have been arrested on counts of breaking and entering and auto larceny.

The youths, two of whom were aged 16 and the other 15, were arrested Monday following investigation into a Saturday incident in which a car was stolen from the Ron Farmer's Auto Supermarket lot 330 S. Main St.

The youths allegedly broke into the dealership body shop sometime bet-ween 6 and 10:51 p.m. Saturday. They obtained the keys to the car, attached a adjacent car, and drove off.

The car was later found on the Lewis Road, about a mile west of Ohio 38. It was abandoned, having been left along the side of the road as a result of an accident in which a fence belonging to Paul A. Hays, 740 E. Temple St., was damaged.

The youths have been released into the custody of their parents, pending hearings before Judge Rollo M. Marchant in Fayette County Juvenile

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite objections that the judge himself fears the defendants, jury selection has begun behind a bulletproof shield in the robbery-assault trial of William and Emily Harris.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler imposed unprecedented security at the trial Monday, but decided not to sequester the jury.

Seated behind the bulletproof shield that separates participants in the trial from spectators, Brandler promised 'an impartial trial" on charges stemming from a spree of violence on May 16-17, 1974.

Included in the charges were a sporting goods store shooting, the theft

That so many TV theme songs should be on record and doing well at the same time is unprecedented. There have been hit themes before — "Mission: Impossible." "Route 66," "Dr. Impossible," Kildare" - but they were always

Steve Barri has a theory about why the situation has suddenly changed. He ought to. A former staff producer with ABC Records and now with Warner Bros. Records, Barri produced four of the five current releases - Cyndi Greco's "Making Our Dreams Come True" from "Laverne and Shirley" being the exception.

Barri's belief is that it's no coincidence all five hit songs come from ABC-TV series, even though the network had nothing to do with getting them recorded.

Says he: "A lot has to do wih ABC-TV's approach to programming, that they seem to be trying to capture that younger audience in the family hour, figuring that if they can get the young people then the adults in the house will wind up watching, too.

"I think the fact that they are involved with those kind of shows means they are hitting that audience that is hip to music a little more than the audience who watches, say, 'Bob Newhart' or 'Mary Tyler Moore,' even though those are also hit shows.

Meaning that it's young people who do most of the record buying and if they hear a catchy tune on television many of them are likely to want it.

That's how this whole trend got started. Barri says he had a thenunknown group called Rhythm Heritage record "Theme from S.W.A.T." only after his 10-year-old son had beseeched him to find out where to get a copy and Barri had discovered there wasn't one. "If you have a good song from a hit

TV show, I don't see how you can miss with a record," says Barri, marvelling at the monstrous audiences that even the worst TV shows draw. "You've got a built-in acceptance already.

But "good song" is the key, he points out. Barri thinks most TV themes are not very interesting and don't merit the additional lyrics and instrumental segments needed to stretch them into record length.

That will change soon, though, Barri predicts. Now that TV producers have seen the success good themes can have, he says, they probably will take greater care in selecting and making use of

'Human fly' still hides true identity

MOJAVE, Calif. (AP) - The Human Fly had done his daring deed: He had flown 100 feet above the Mojave Desert strapped to the top of a DC8 jetliner.

The 29-year-old masked man gestured to the crowd below with the sign of a cross and a clenched fist. "It was a great feeling up there," he said after the flight at the California National Air Races.

"I'm the greatest daredevil in the world.

The performance of a latterday barnstormer was at 220 miles an hour Sunday, considerably more than the speeds of wingstanders in the biplane

Although dressed in gaudy white cape, red jumpsuit and red platform shoes for the 15 minute flight, The Human Fly claimed no interest in personal fame.

Throughout the flight and meetings with reporters later, his face was concealed with a red mask.

"The Fly wants to remain anonymous because he doesn't want to draw attention to himself," said his promotion agent, David Levin.

Levin claimed the Fly's steely nerve and stamina stem from his experience in an automobile accident in which 60 per cent of his body was ruined and rebuilt with steel parts.

He added that because of the Fly's hospital experience, he will donate "a substantial portion of his earnings to a recognizable charity.

The Fly seemed a bit nervous as his aides bound his chest and legs to his flying brace, but his manner was confident as man and machine descended to the runway, the man signaling victory.

Back on the ground, the Fly was dashed to doctors for a checkup and was given the go-ahead to meet reporters.

'The only problem I had up there was with my helmet," he said. "A piece came off during the flight."

Yes, you can do something about your summer electric bills

· AIR CONDITIONING IS A MAJOR FACTOR IN SUMMER ELECTRIC BILLS. The following suggestions can help you control the amount of your electric bill during the long hot summer ahead.

 SET YOUR THERMOSTAT at the highest setting which will keep you comfortable—generally about 10 degrees lower than the outside temperature. Remember, for each degree lower, your air conditioner works harder and uses more electricity!

• TURN YOUR AIR CONDITIONER OFF during cool nights. Give it an early start the next morning...before the new day's heat fills the house. When you're trying to cool off a warm house, don't start by using a colder-than-normal setting. It won't cool any faster.

 GOING AWAY FOR A WEEKEND OR LONGER? Turn the unit OFF. Leaving for several hours? Set on FAN ONLY.

 KEEP OUT THE SUN'S HEAT by drawing drapes or lowering awnings on the sunny side of the house. When it's really hot, close the fresh air regulator (window units) to keep the heat outside. Open it on cool nights.

 DON'T BLOCK AIR VENTS with furniture or drapes and don't unbalance your central system by trying to maintain different temperatures in different rooms by closing air outlets.

• KEEP THE BASEMENT DOOR CLOSED. Cold air will flow to the lowest part of your house. Close the fireplace damper so cool air isn't drawn from your home through the chimney.

• CHECK YOU EQUIPMENT every year. Regular maintenance may help avoid costly repair bills.

 IF YOU PLAN TO BUY AN AIR CONDITIONER THIS SUMMER, consider not only its operating features and original cost but also its "EER"—energy efficiency rating. This is a measure of how much cooling the unit will deliver for a given amount of electricity. The higher the "EER" rating, the more economically it will cool your home.

Some more energy-saving suggestions.

 Insulation is important...storm windows, weather-stripping and caulking help keep the hot air out! With proper insulation, you'll save on your utility bills all year 'round.

 Rid your kitchen of cooking heat by using your exhaust fan.

 Lights, TV and most other appliances generate heat. Turn them off when they're not in use.

 Save your laundry, dishwashing and other hear-and moisture-producing activities—do them in early morning and evening.

· Use an exhaust fan while bathing, or open windows to keep heat and humidity out of the house.

 An attic exhaust fan or proper attic ventilation will help prevent the build-up of intense heat above your living area, reducing the load on your air conditioning.

No surprises in Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - For two weeks, during the Wimbledon tournament, the British try to forget about their nation's decline and the sagging pound sterling, and concentrate on the constancy and delight of watching tennis played on the most hallowed grass in the world by the game's best players.

The 24,500 fans who swarmed into the All-England Club a few miles southwest of central London for opening day Monday, saw no big upsets. Defending champion and No. 1 seed Arthur Ashe and all the seeded men's singles players who got on court came away

Ashe, whose emotional victory over Jimmy Connors in the 1975 final still is discussed here, had a good workout against Ferdi Taygan of Framingham, Mass., a UCLA student making his Wimbledon debut. Despite 10 double faults and a couple of set points saved, Ashe emerged a 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 winner.

Connors also showed why he is the No. 2 seed and the bookmakers' favorite to regain the title he won in 1974, easily beating Antonio Zugarelli of Italy 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

The other seeds who made it to the second round were Ilie Nastase of Romania, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Adriano Panatta of Italy, Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Torn Okker of The Netherlands, John Newcombe and Tony Roche of Australia, Jaime Fillol of Chile and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Three earn Olympic berths

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Harvey Glance and Houston McTear, a pair of 19-year-old sprinters, and veteran Steve Riddick earned Olympic berths in the 100 meters Sunday as Steve Williams, who had been favored for a gold medal at Montreal, watched from the sidelines.

Glance, a freshman at Auburn, blazed to the tape in 10.11 seconds, his fastest time ever under automatic timing and a clocking that would have given him a gold medal at Munich.

McTear jumped out to a huge lead, but Glance brought the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials crowd of 12,500 people to their feet as he caught McTear with 10 meters to go.

McTear, who ran a world record 9.0 for 100 yards last year in a high school meet in Florida, took second in 10.16, but he immediately pulled up, clutching his left hamstring.

"It appears that he has pulled some muscle fibers in his hamstring," a physician, Dr. Bob Larson, said of McTear, who was helped from the field.

McTear, whose 10.16 was his all-time best under automatic timing, is not entered in the 200 meters so he has a month before Montreal for the injury to Williams, the overwhelming favorite to win the 100 meters, dropped out Saturday when he pulled the hamstring muscle in his right leg. He planned to try again Monday in the preliminaries of the 200-meters dash.

Riddick, representing the Philadelphia Pioneer Club, was third in 10.18 with Johnny Jones, the prep star from Lampasas, Tex., next in 10.23 and earning the alternate berth should McTear be unable to compete in Montreal.

"I'd really like to make it in both sprints is possible," said Glance, who was entered in Monday's qualifying heats for the 200.

His time Sunday was the fourth fastest ever by an American. Riddick is one of the trio above him with his 10.05 last year.

Williams wasn't the only casualty in the first two days of the trials. Terry Albritton, the University of Hawaii shotputter who set an amateur world record of 71-81/2 in February, finished fourth in the finals Sunday with 67-0 and Dan Ripley, indoor world record holder in the pole vault, failed to clear 17-03/4 in the qualifying.

Al Feuerbach, a 1972 Olympian, and

George Woods, silver medalist in 1968 and 1972, finished one-two with throws of 69-31/2 and 69-23/4, respectively, and fast-improving Petshmock, formerly of the University of Oregon, grabbed the third spot in 68-91/4.

Mac Wilkins, the former University of Oregon strongman who holds the world mark of 232-6 in the discus, easily qualified for the finals in that event. His toss of 210-9 was second best among the 10 who advanced.

The top throw of 212-2 was by 38-year-old Jay Silvester, who is seeking a berth on his fourth Olympic team. Kathy Schmidt, American record holder in the javelin, won that event in the only women's final. Her throw was 213-5, under her U.S. mark of 218-3 set earlier this year.

Sherry Calvert of Lakewood International was second in 191-7 and Karin Smith of UCLA earned the third berth with a toss of 187-9.

Home runs give Reds win

AP Sports Writer In Cincinnati, it was Souvenir Night. And in Atlanta, it was just another night at the Office.

Cincinnati's fans - two of them, anyway - went home with home run balls Monday night, compliments of Ken Griffey and George Foster, who unloaded their blasts on Doug Rau's first two pitches in the sixth inning.

The result was a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles that boosted the Reds' National League West lead to 41/2 games over the Dodgers.

Atlanta's fans - all of them - got another taste of what they've gotten used to lately, namely Rowland Office's streaking.

No, not that kind. The kind with a bat. He's gotten at least one hit in his last 26 games, the longest in the league this year. He got four of them Monday night and, after the last, he trotted home on Jimmy Wynn's tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning that propelled the Braves past Houston 11-9

In the rest of the NL, Philadelphia widened its East Division lead over idle Pittsburgh to 81/2 games by pounding Montreal 8-3, San Diego crept within half a game of the Dodgers in the West by beating San Francisco 6-3 and St. Louis mauled the New York Mets 7-2.

As Foster stepped to the plate in Cincinnati in the bottom of the sixth, the fans' cheers were only beginning to die down following Griffey's fourth home run, a mammoth blast to right field. He brought them up again with his 13th homer, a shot deep into the left field stands.

Griffey's homer gave rookie Pat Zachry all the lead he needed. He finished with a fourhitter for his sixth victory of the year and his third over the Dodgers.

Braves 11, Astros 9

Rowland Office's four hits raised his one-time dismal .193 batting average to potent .308.

Office had a run-scoring double in the third inning, another one in a five-run fourth, a run-scoring single in the fifth and a single prior to Wynn's decisive homer in the seventh.

Phils 8, Expos 3

Philadelphia's Tom Underwood was belted all over the joint in the early innings, but held on just long enough to pick up a victory, thanks to Garry Maddox' two-run double and Bob Boone's two-run single in the fourth inning that wiped out Montreal's lead.

Greg Luzinski clouted his ninth homer of the season and the 100th of his big-league career one inning later.

Padres 6, Giants 3

Johnny Grubb and Willie Davis homered to carry the Padres past San Francisco. Grubb's, off John Montefusco, was a lead-off shot in the first inning. Davis' was a two-run job in the fifth that put San Diego ahead 5-0.

Dave Friesleben went the route, stopping the Giants on eight hits, including a two-run homer by pinchhitter Garry Thomason in the seventh

Cards 7, Mets 2

Lynn McGlothen turned in six innings of six-hit pitching and turned his bat to good use to lead the Cards over New

His single started a three-run second inning against Jery Koosman and, in the fifth, he dumped a suicide squeeze to knock in another run.

Upstarts spark Olympic trials

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A pair of upstarts produced fireworks, some old veterans performed as expected and for the first time in three days of the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials the winners, not the losers, drew at-

Edwin Moses, a 20-year-old junior at Morehouse College in Atlanta, shattered the American record in the 400meter intermediate hurdles and Brenda Morehead rocketed to a near record in the 100 Monday.

And veteran rick Wohlhuter gained another Olympic trip with an expected 800 victory.

Moses' time of 48.30 bettered the American mark of 48.51 set by Ralph Mann when he ran second in the 1972 Games to John Akii-bua's 47.82 world mark

Mann, 27, and Jim Bolding, 26, two of the favorites, fell behind and failed to make the team as darkhorse Quentin Wheeler and Mike Shine qualified in-

Monday produced none of the big surprises or controversy which marked the first two days of this eight-day competition, when such stars as sprinter Steve Williams, pole vaulter Dan Ripley and shot putter Terry Albritton failed to make the team.

Miss Morehead, 19, a freshman at Tennessee State, burst from the starting block and sped to the finish line in 11.08, a shade off the world record of 11.04 set three weeks ago by West Germany's Ingrid Helten.

"I felt good," she said. "I didn't think it (her time) would be that good." It

Garland two hits Boston

Forgotten hurler stops Sox

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer A no-hitter was the furthest thing from Wayne Garland's mind. He was just hoping for a complete game. Well, he got what he wanted - and almost got what he didn't expect. Garland, a long-forgotten man on the Baltimore staff, was recently moved into the starting rotation — and repaid the Orioles with a splendid pitching performance Monday night.

The chunky right-hander pitched a no-hitter before losing it with two out in the eighth inning and finished with a 2-0, two-hit triumph over the Boston Red

Garland has flirted with no-hit fame before, but surprisingly, did not complete that start. It was against the Oakland A's two years ago and Garland lost in it in the ninth before getting hit hard and driven to the showers.

Two other American League pitchers also had good nights. Bert Blyleven fired a one-hitter to lead the Texas Rangers to a 1-0, 10-inning victory over the Oakland A's, and Ed Figueroa pitched a three-hitter to pace the New York Yankees to a 6-0 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

Elsewhere, the California Angels nipped the Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 10 innings; the Chicago White Sox defeated the Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 11 innings and the Detroit Tigers turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2 in 11.

The burly Garland had the Red Sox Annual management of the second secon mesmerized until Rico Petrocelli punched a weak ground single on a 2-0 count through the right side of the infield in the eighth.

Then in the ninth, Rick Miller reached base on an infield single for the Red Sox, but Garland struck out the next batter, his 10th of the game, and the Orioles pulled off a double play to finish off Boston.

Rangers 1, A's 0 Bert Blyleven earned his 100th major league victory with a splendid one-hit performance and Tom Grieve blasted a leadoff homer in the 10th inning to give

Texas its victory over Oakland.
The only hit off the Ranger righthander was a fifth-inning single by Ken McMullen. Blyleven, 5-8, struck out eight batters and walked four. Grieve's homer, his ninth of the season, came off losing pitcher Paul Mitchell, 3-4, who gave up six hits.

Yankees 6, Indians 0

Ed Figueroa's three-hit pitching, combined with the hitting and fielding of third baseman Craig Nettles, sparked New York over Cleveland. The triumph by the Yankees over their nearest rivals in the American League East increased New York's division lead to eight games. The victory was the seventh straight for the streaking

Figueroa, 8-4, struck out seven and walked two. Cleveland starter Dennis Eckersley, 3-6, was the loser. Nettles collected three hits in the game, driving in two runs and scoring two more. He also produced fielding gems in the first two innings on balls hit by Rick Manning and Frank Duffy. Angels 2, Twins 1

Pinch-hitter Bill Melton's 10th-inning single drove home the winning run, lifting California over Minnesota. Melton's hit was the third in a row off loser Dave Goltz, who had allowed only five hits over the first nine innings. Iones launched the rally with a one-out single to right and moved to second on Dave Chalk's hit before Melton batted for Andy Etchebarren and lined his game-winner to left field. White Sox 2, Royals 1

tying run in the ninth inning and the winning run in the 11th as the White Sox nipped Kansas City and snapped a 10game losing streak for the Royals.

In the ninth, Ralph Garr and Buddy Bradford singled and, with two away, Spencer singled for the tying run. In the 11th, Jorge Orta led off with a single and was safe when reliever Tom Hall, 1-1, fielded Bradford's bunt and threw late to second trying for a forceout. One out later, Spencer singled for the goahead run.

barring picketing at General Tire and Rubber Co.'s Akron plant was granted Monday by a Summit County common pleas judge.

Striking United Rubber Workers(URW) from the industry's Big Four picketed General Tire in Akron Monday, effectively halting the plant's operation. URW workers for General Tire have an agreement with the firm to remain on the job despite expiration of their contract on May 15.

Ad restrictions called unfair by Brown

CLEVELAND (AP) — Atty. Gen. William J. Brown told a Federal Trade Commission hearing Monday that advertising restrictions on eyeglass costs were "anticonsumer and probably unconsitutional."

The FTC hearings are being held on a proposed rule which would forbid price dvertising restrictions on glasses.

Brown told the hearing board that at least 14 Ohio cities now have such advertising restrictions.

He said the FTC must adopt the regulation because, he said, pressure from optometrists likely will prevent repeal of local eyeglass advertising

SCOUNDREL TIME. By Lillian Hellman. Little, Brown. 155 Pages. $7.95.

In 1952, playwright Lillian Hellman was called to appear before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. It was not something that she wanted to do, but she did. Her appearance was relatively brief, and yet it was to haunt her for a long time.
She notes at the beginning of this most absorbing journal that she tried twice before to write about that time "but I didn't much like what I wrote."

Finally, she was able to write about that past by telling her-self that "this third time out, if I stick to what I know, what, happened to me, and a few others, I have a chance to write my own history of the time."
The result is "Scoundrel Time," a highly personal memoir of a time not too long ago as it is remembered by an extremely literate and most intelligent woman.

Very few pages in Miss Hel-lman's book are devoted to her actual appearance before the

the memorandum is, he feeds it to a journalist, thereby blowing was brief, although it seemed much, much longer to her. Rather, the bulk of her book is devoted to an examination of the years preceding the 1950s and how what came about did

In clear, clean prose, Miss Hellman tells what life was like for her and some of her friends such as Dashiell Hammett before her appearance and what it was like after. Used to money, and finding it short after her appearance, she was forced to give up many things she valued. But after the initial shock of loss she recovered and now can say philosophically, "Loss of money can take away what you like and have been good at, but in my case, I am now certain that without the trouble I would have stayed in one place, one frame too long.'

with such a wild statement that people can't possibly buy it. So we start out with a news flash that Kodak has just reduced the prices of most of their still camera line. No kidding! We can't believe that this indicates the beginning of a trend, but it's great to see something go down in price.

In the past few days we've had a chance to see some of the beautiful pictures our local folks are shooting out through the West. Rocky Mountain National Park offers beautiful scenes for the lensman and some of the slides we've seen show that our local photographers are able to catch the beauty on film. It sorta gives us the itch to pack up cameras and film, lock up the shop, and head west. In fact, if

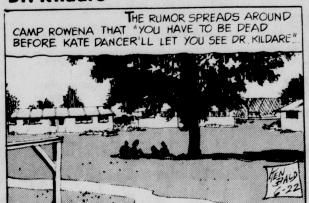

CIBACHROME is the magic key to color print fun, and many of the local folks have discovered this route to breath-taking color prints from their favorite slides. Easy? As I've said before, even Osgood would have no trouble with this stuff. In fact, if you see Osgood, tell him to come in and get a CIBACHROME outfit, and I guarantee he'll have some prizewinners out of his first batch. If you've not seen the kind of color print you can get from CIBACHROME, you just can't imagine how much better the print quality is compared to the color enlargements you have been seeing. This stuff is something else. And wait see some of the beautiful consider this deal from a team of four match where at each table the final contract was seven spades and West led the king of hearts.

For an extreme example,

South West Pass Pass Opening lead - king of hearts. Desperate circumstances require desperate remedies.

At the first table, declarer won with the ace and, realizing that his thirteenth trick would have to come from diamonds there were only twelve sure tricks in sight - ruffed a low diamond at trick two. Declarer Delicate Finesse divided 4-3 or, failing that, to find either opponent with the singleton or doubleton queen.

South then led a trump to the ace and ruffed another low diamond. After drawing trumps, he entered dummy with a club and tried to run the diamonds. Unfortunately, it turned out that East had five to the queen, and the outcome was that South went down one.

The declarer at the second table, upon winning the heart lead, first cashed the A-K of diamonds and then ruffed a diamond high. When West showed out on the third diamond, South realized that he could no longer establish the diamonds with normal play. He was short one entry to dummy for this purpose.

Accordingly, at trick five, he led a low trump and after West followed low, played the seven from dummy! The finesse succeeding, South was now home. He ruffed another diamond high, played a trump to the ace, and ruffed the fifth round of diamonds, finally felling East's queen. Then, after drawing West's last trump, he was able to enter dummy with a club to cash the jack of diamonds and so make the grand slam.

Desperate circumstances was hoping to find the diamonds require desperate remedies!

Mary Jo Wilson, Sabina, told police officers that while she was inside of Favette County Memorial Hospital, a female subject approached her and requested that she go outside at 5 p.m. Monday.

Once outside, she said, the subject knocked her down, causing her to lose her glasses. The subject then reportedly drove off in a car with Ms. Wilson's glasses. The glasses were valued at $50.

OSU to get investigation clearinghouse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The school of journalism at Ohio State University says it plans to open a nationwide clearinghouse for investigative reporters early next year.

Prof. Paul Williams will direct the program, which he says has a sizeable commitment from the university. OSU officials, he said, have agreed to provide space and personnel for the project, which is to be fully operational by July 1977.

The project has evolved over the last two years and was announced over the weekend in Indianapolis, Ind.
Williams said the idea for the center grew out of the formation of Investigative Reporters and Editors, Inc., formed a year ago at a meeting in Reston, Va.

"The primary purpose of the center is educational. We want to help people in the business to do better work.

'For example, if a reporter in Kokomo, Ind., is working on Federal Housing Authority fraud, we can direct him to several investigations already done and put him up about 10 steps on the ladder," Williams said. The professor said Ohio State University's choice to house the center grew out of his interest in investigative reporting, the school's course on the subject and its heavy curriculum of public service reporting.
